Memo to PKE:

Additional books, forthcoming:

Paul Blackstock wrote to me from Munich (having emerged unscathed from 6 weeks in the U.S.S.R.) last week, explaining his next projects:

1. A forthcoming book on the Tukhachevsky Affair.
2. A later book, tentatively planned to be one co-authored by Peter Tomkins, on Admiral Canaris and the Abwehr.

On the theory that Professor Blackstock has put everything he knew into his first volume, The Strategy of Subversion; rehashed and expanded, in Agents of Deceit; and begun a desperate search for other material, I expect the following volume to be at the Ladislas Farago level — pretty sad. It is at least possible, however, that he will reverse the downward trend.
